DISCOVER THE WORLD OPENS OFFICES IN ECUADOR

SCOTTSDALE, AZ, Aug. 22, 2017—Discover the World announced it recently opened its newest global network offices in Quito, the capital city of the Republic of Ecuador, and a second office location in Guayaquil.

“By opening these offices, Discover now spans 15 countries throughout Latin America,” said Ian Murray, Discover the World’s executive vice president. “Ecuador has been one of the fastest growing countries in the region over the past five years with a stable political and economic outlook. Investing into a local sales and marketing organization allows us to increase our focus of developing new business opportunities for our existing and future clients.”

Charlie Ryan, Discover the World’s vice president Latin America added, “These new offices in Ecuador will increase our current client opportunities and offer new solutions to those travel and technology companies who need a strong presence in Latin America.”

Headed by Rocio de Diaz, the team will provide services for Air New Zealand, All Nippon Airways and Windstar Cruises with plans to grow their client portfolio.
